Plastic windows and doors are made of a German five-and six-chamber system Veka (Class A) reaching the highest qualities and requirements for strength and stability. Optimal statics and strength of the frame is provided by all round solid reinforcement. The hardware goes around the entire perimeter, which includes more security features compared to commercially available windows in the market. The underlying profile of the window is filled with insulating inserts in the ventricles of the profile. Quality double glazing and triple glazing in the windows feature excellent thermal insulation so that the windows meet the highest requirements in construction.

If you are not fans of plastic, we can offer you high quality wooden windows and doors from proven manufacturers. Wooden windows are more difficult to maintain and if case is properly and regularly implemented, perfect appearance and characteristics remain unchanged. In our menu you will find wooden window series, which meet higher requirements for residential, family houses and passive houses, wood -aluminium windows and also a special type of wooden windows for the renovation of the historic parts of towns.

solar Systems

Did you know that for just one hour of sunshine, the sun produces enough energy, to cover the annual needs of the entire population in the world? Solar energy is an inexhaustible source of energy, whose use has no negative effects on the environment. In our conditions it is possible to exploit solar energy particularly to produce heat service and pool water and to heat up objects. At your request we can design a project, which is optima directly to your house and its use.

Insulation systems protect your home from the influence of weather. In winter it keeps indoor thermal comfort in summer, it protects overheating of the house. There are several reasons to insulate the house. These are the most important: especially energy savings, higher quality of living, weather protection and attractive design of different types of facades.

As you can see, we are ready to provide all support by which you can make a very significant cost savings on heating and make your living and house more attractive. More information selection of many types, colors, decorations and technical specifications can be found on the website www.vpo.cz.
